Our Child protection in sport online training course will give you and your staff a better understanding of how to recognise, respond to, report and record concerns about a child.

Child protection in sport will help you to understand your role and responsibilities in protecting children and young people involved in sport.

Thousands of staff and volunteers come into contact with children and young people through sports clubs or organisations, or as individuals.

The course is for anyone working or volunteering in sport who comes into contact with children and young people. For those who have regular contact with children such as sports coaches this can provide a useful precursor for more advanced face-to-face safeguarding training that is appropriate, and in some cases mandatory, for their role.

Child protection in sport has a series of modules you can work through at your own pace:

- introduction
- module 1: recognise possible abuse
- module 2: respond appropriately
- module 3: report your concerns
- module 4: record your observations
- conclusion.

Each module takes about 30–45 minutes to complete and will conclude with a series of five questions, immediately followed by a full explanation of the correct and incorrect answers.

There are teaching pages, film clips, audio recordings, reflective tasks, interactive learning activities and quizzes.
Here’s what has been said about the course...

“A very good interactive course that checks and challenges your thoughts and understanding. I would recommend this course to others either to recap on knowledge or for people new to safeguarding”

Athlete Services Manager, British Paralympics Association

Child protection in sport: sample course pages

For more information:
nsppc.org.uk/onlinetraining
help@nspcc.org.uk
thecpsu.org.uk/training-events/choose-the-right-training